Ben McAdams is a former Member of Congress, Salt Lake County Mayor, and Utah State Senator who works across differences — not because it's always easy, but because that's how hard things get done.

Ben's mother taught public school and raised six kids mostly alone. He remembers the power being shut off, their home in foreclosure, and having to choose between medical debt and groceries. That's why Ben believes that hard work should pay off, and no family should be one illness or missed paycheck away from losing everything.

As Mayor, Ben expanded early childhood education and Medicaid for Utah families, and killed a proposed data center that would have cost taxpayers $200 million. In Congress, he fought to save the Great Salt Lake, defended Utah's public lands from being sold off, protected healthcare access, and passed consumer protection laws that took on corruption and self-dealing.

Since leaving Congress, Ben has helped local governments connect vulnerable families to benefits they qualify for, deliver services more efficiently, and make housing more affordable.

Ben has a record of results when results are hard to come by. He's running for Congress to bring that approach to Washington because Utah families can't afford more excuses.

As a fellow SLC resident, I know the gravity of the hardships we face; housing cost, healthcare, rights and security, and much more. Partisan politics has torn America, and it has torn your paycheck, your quality of life, and threatens your safety with a false promise of security. Electing a Democrat over a Republican (or vice versa) will not change that. My promise is to prioritize Utahns, and call out the partisan malice. We need change. Here it is.

Riley Owen will bring a new generation of leadership to Washington as one of the first conservative Gen Z congressional nominees in the country. Riley served in the White House during the Covid-19 pandemic and mobilized American industry to save lives while advancing trade and manufacturing policy to strengthen American workers and markets.

Riley continued to bolster America's industrial base working in the shipbuilding and drone industries where he helped build companies and create jobs. He co-founded and manages Sentala, a wildlife conservation foundation using cutting-edge technology to protect our planet. He currently serves our country as an intelligence officer in the Navy Reserve with firsthand experience in national security and foreign policy. Riley studied international relations at Princeton, where he led the men's rugby program, and earned a Master of Public Policy from Oxford as an Eisenhower Scholar.

Riley is running for Congress to deliver results, not rhetoric. He will fight for affordable housing, congressional term limits and stock trading bans, expanded business tax credits for paid maternity leave, support for the Great Salt Lake, and social media age verification to protect our kids.

My name is Peter Crosby, and I am focused on practical solutions for the biggest challenges facing Northern Utah: an affordability crisis that touches every part of our lives, protecting the Great Salt Lake and our public lands, and directly tackling corruption in our highest institutions. I do not accept corporate PAC donations or funding from PACs aligned with foreign interests, and want to get dark money out of our political system. I believe citizens of Northern Utah deserve a representative that lives in the district, listens to their concerns, and puts the people of Utah ahead of party or the pursuit of personal power.

I am a husband, father of 3 daughters, a working professional with over 20 years of experience, and an educator rooted here in Northern Utah. I have two degrees in political science, both from Utah State University, where I am also an adjunct faculty member. I am deeply invested in ensuring the best interests of the community where I live, work, and pay taxes. I walk our communities and hold monthly in-person town halls so I can understand what you need me to help with.

OCCUPATION Automation Engineer

I'm not a politician--I'm an automation engineer. My job is to study manufacturing systems and interview production personnel, analyze data, and correct flaws in the system so we can achieve better results. It is vital to understand that improving outcomes depends on improving the system, both in manufacturing and politics. If a manufacturing process or electoral system rewards bad choices, lecturing people to behave differently won't make improvements stick.

I'm a normal (nerdy) Utah dad: I adore playing board games with my family, playing Ultimate Frisbee on Saturdays, and reading Brandon Sanderson with my kids. My family inspires solemn responsibility to leave a better world for the next generation. For too long, we have procrastinated addressing important problems facing our country, and I am terrified that if nothing changes, they'll inherit a country in crisis due to our poor choices.

My faith is the foundation of my moral framework. Organized worship is critical for me, because it develops the fabric of community, creates opportunities to volunteer and serve others, and teaches me the empathy to esteem my neighbor as myself. The gospel encourages us to look outwards to help one another, and to look inwards for ways to constantly improve.

It has been the honor of my life to represent Northern Utah in Congress. Over the last three terms, I've worked to deliver real results while standing up for the values that make our state and country strong.

That means fighting Washington's reckless spending and pushing for greater fiscal discipline. It means strengthening Hill Air Force Base, supporting our servicemen and women, and making sure Utah continues to play a vital role in our national defense. It means standing up to China, bringing critical industries and supply chains back to America, and protecting our economic and national security.

I've also worked to help Utah families and small businesses keep more of what they earn. We've delivered meaningful tax relief, expanded the adoption tax credit, restored the charitable deduction, and advanced policies that help businesses invest, hire, and grow.

As Vice Chair of the House Republican Conference and a member of the Ways and Means and Budget Committees, I'm proud to give Utah a strong voice in Washington.

There is still important work ahead. I'm running for another term to keep fighting for Northern Utah, advancing conservative solutions, and building a stronger future for the next generation.

I oppose the Box Elder data center because of the dishonesty surrounding its MIDA approval, its size, which is bigger than the city of Boston, the lack of transparency on how much water it will use (power generation alone for 9GW will take billions of gallons, which they don't tell you), and because I think the data center will be used to erode our liberty. I'm also opposed to increasing our national debt. I am for a strong national defense to protect our country. We aren't the world's policeman and we should avoid unnecessary foreign wars and entanglements. We need to recognize that we have corruption in Utah. Some MIDA board members, according to the Utah Auditor's office, are personally receiving $25,000 or more a month from contracts they approved with their own business interests. And the corruption goes all the way to the top. Cox appointed MIDA and brought the Box Elder data center to them for approval. Remember the data center is still approved at its original 40,000 acre size. Let's change that by undoing the approval. I am committed to doing that. Send someone they don't own, and let's clean up Utah!

Kent was enjoying retirement in Castle Valley – where he has been river-rafting, hiking, biking, and fishing – when he decided he could no longer sit on the sidelines.

His priorities are safeguarding Utah's precious lands and water, defending the Constitution, protecting Social Security and addressing our healthcare/affordability crisis. He is calling for a moratorium on new data centers.

Dr. Udell accepts ZERO donations from corporate PACs. He believes representatives should answer to the people they serve and not the biggest donors.

An Affordability Crisis is raging, the US Dollar has lost in excess of 95% of its value. The finances of the United States of America are in grave disrepair, underreported and even misreported. Federal Bond debt is more than $40 trillion and growing beyond control. There exists greater than $100 trillion in unreported and unfunded US debt. I will submit the following legislation: 1. The US Federal Government must submit to outside 3rd party independent audit every year. 2. US debt must be restructured (drastically reduced). 3. The US must return to sound money.

The Second Amendment to the Constitution is almost universally misunderstood by conservatives and liberals alike. The first thirteen words are integral to a complete understanding of the Founding Father's intent and its original and historical function. US Citizens have been stripped of both their Second Amendment rights and responsibilities. Under current Utah State Code most citizens are members of the State "Unorganized" militia. This is a bastardization of the first thirteen words. It requires corrective legislation at both the State and Federal levels.

We need to raise the Standard of Liberty now or our great grandchildren will lose their heritage forever.

STATEWIDE BALLOT QUESTIONS

What exactly are ballot questions?

Utah law allows for people to vote on issues, including constitutional amendments and initiatives. Initiatives that qualify for the ballot become numbered propositions.

Constitutional amendments propose changes to the Utah Constitution. Any change to the constitution requires approval by voters of Utah.

How do questions end up on the ballot?

Constitutional amendments begin as bills in the Utah State Legislature. If two-thirds of all members elected to both the House and Senate vote in favor of the bill, it is placed on the ballot for Utah voters to decide. If more than half of Utah voters vote in favor of an amendment, the Utah Constitution is amended.

Who wrote the information about the questions?

The Office of Legislative Research and General Council drafts the titles of constitutional amendments that appear on the ballot.

The presiding officers of the Legislature prepare a fiscal impact estimate prior to signature gathering. The presiding officers write an analysis of each measure.

What's on my ballot?

Constitutional Amendment A

Shall the Utah Constitution be amended to change how proposed constitutional amendments are published, requiring publication for 60 days immediately before the general election in a manner established by state law instead of in newspapers?

If voters approve Constitutional Amendment A, state statute would change to require the Lieutenant Governor to publish the full text of all proposed constitutional amendments and other ballot questions from the Legislature, on the Utah Public Notice Website and on the Lieutenant Governor's website for 60 days immediately before the general election.

Constitutional Amendment B

Shall the Utah Constitution be amended to require that citizen-proposed laws that increase taxes compared to existing law be approved by at least 60% of voters, instead of a simple majority?

Constitutional Amendment A

Ballot Title

If voters approve Constitutional Amendment A, state statute would change to require the Lieutenant Governor to publish the full text of all proposed constitutional amendments and other ballot questions from the Legislature, on the Utah Public Notice Website and on the Lieutenant Governor's website for 60 days immediately before the general election.

Proposal to Amend Utah Constitution - Publication Amendments

Impartial Analysis

Current Provisions of the Utah Constitution

Under the Utah Constitution, the Legislature may propose a constitutional amendment with a two-thirds vote in each house. The proposed amendment is then submitted to voters at a general election for approval or rejection.

Before the election, the Constitution requires the Legislature to publish the proposed amendment in a newspaper in each county for two months.

Effect of Constitutional Amendment A

Constitutional Amendment A would require publication of a proposed constitutional amendment for 60 calendar days immediately before the general election in a manner set by state law rather than requiring publication in newspapers for two months immediately before the general election.

Constitutional Amendment A would not change how constitutional amendments are proposed or approved by voters.

Implementing Legislation

If voters approve Constitutional Amendment A, H.B. 481, Ballot Proposition Requirements, enacted during the 2025 General Session, will take effect. H.B. 481 requires the Lieutenant Governor to publish the full text of all proposed constitutional amendments and other ballot questions from the Legislature, on the Utah Public Notice Website and on the Lieutenant Governor's website for 60 calendar days immediately before the general election.

Fiscal Effects

If approved, Constitutional Amendment A, together with H.B. 481, could reduce state costs by up to $1.4 million every two years, based on recent estimates. The savings from changing the publication requirement for proposed constitutional amendments from newspapers to publicly operated websites would vary depending on the length of each proposed constitutional amendment and newspaper publication rates.

Argument in Favor

The Utah Constitution currently requires public notices about constitutional amendments and statewide initiatives to be published in print newspapers in all 29 counties. While that made sense when newspapers were the primary source of information, most Utahns now rely on digital sources, mobile devices, and online platforms to stay informed.

Amendment A updates Utah's public notice requirements to reflect how people access information today while preserving transparency and public awareness. Utah taxpayers currently spend approximately $800,000 to publish these notices in newspapers statewide. Despite that expense, print notices are increasingly unlikely to reach the broad audience they once did. Amendment A allows Utah to use modern publication methods that can better connect voters with important election information while reducing unnecessary costs.

What Amendment A Does:

- Modernizes Utah's public notices to utilize the most up-to-date and effective communication methods.
- Maintains the Constitution's 60-day public notice period before general elections.
- Improves accessibility for voters throughout Utah.
- Allows publication methods to adapt as technology evolves.
- Saves taxpayers approximately $800,000 in publication costs.
- Keeps voters informed while maintaining transparency.

Public notice is only effective if people can easily find and review it. Amendment A ensures information about proposed constitutional amendments remains widely available while allowing state law to use communication methods that reflect how Utahns receive information today. Amendment A does not eliminate public notice. It updates how public notice is delivered. By modernizing an outdated constitutional requirement, Utah can maintain transparency, improve accessibility and save taxpayer dollars.

A FOR vote on Amendment A supports a public notice process designed for today's Utah voters while preserving the Constitution's requirement that voters receive notice before a general election.

Join us in voting FOR Amendment A.

Rep. Anthony Loubet
Sen. Daniel McCay

Rebuttal to Argument in Favor

Because Amendment A was adopted unanimously by the Legislature, no rebuttal to the argument in favor of Amendment A was submitted.

Argument Against

Because Amendment A was adopted unanimously by the Legislature, no argument against Amendment A was submitted.

Proposal to Amend Utah Constitution - Statewide Initiatives

Impartial Analysis

Current Constitutional Provision

The Utah Constitution allows voters to propose and pass a state law through a statewide initiative. Statewide initiatives are voted on by the people, and most are approved if a majority (more than half) of voters approve the measure; however, statewide initiatives related to the taking of wildlife require approval by two-thirds of voters.

Effect of Constitutional Amendment B

Constitutional Amendment B would increase the voter approval required for statewide initiatives that increase taxes compared to existing law.

Statewide initiatives voted on after November 1, 2026, would require approval by at least 60% of voters if the statewide initiative:

- Creates a new tax;
- Expands an existing tax to cover additional items or transactions;
- Increases an existing tax rate; or
- Changes a property tax rate in a way that results in a smaller decrease in the property tax rate than would occur under existing law.

Constitutional Amendment B would not change the vote required to approve any other type of statewide initiative.

Fiscal Effects

Enactment of Constitutional Amendment B likely would not materially impact current state revenues or expenditures.

Argument in Favor

Amendment B asks: How easy should it be for your neighbor to raise your taxes?

Amendment B would require only statewide ballot initiatives that create new taxes, increase existing taxes or expand existing taxes to receive at least 60% voter approval before becoming law.

Why Amendment B Matters

- Taxes affect every Utahn, shaping family budgets, retirement income, businesses, housing costs, the cost of living, and the state's economy.
- Because tax increases affect all Utahns, they should be adopted only if there is substantial support from the voters who ultimately pay them.
- Amendment B requires stronger voter agreement before new taxes are approved.

What Amendment B Does

- Requires statewide tax-increasing ballot initiatives to receive at least 60% voter approval before becoming law.
- Preserves Utah's citizen initiative process and voters' ability to propose measures on the ballot.
- Keeps the decision in the hands of Utah voters.

Accountability and Tax Policy

The Utah Constitution will still protect the right to propose initiatives, place measures on the ballot and vote directly on public policy questions. Initiatives that increase taxes, however, deserve extra consideration because they directly affect every Utah taxpayer. Amendment B would ensure broad community support for potential tax increases.

If elected officials vote to raise taxes, voters know and can hold them accountable at the ballot box.

Taxes imposed by elected bodies can be reversed by new legislators at any time, but statewide initiatives operate differently. They are drafted only by proponents of the increase, there is no public input in the details, and cannot be revised or adjusted once passed, other than by another costly initiative. Tax increases have long-term consequences for family budgets and the economy, and should require broader public support before becoming law.

A Higher Bar for Higher Taxes

The higher approval threshold is a meaningful and achievable standard. Utah voters have supported funding measures when they believed the benefits justified the costs, and many have received well over 60% of the vote.

Amendment B does not prevent initiatives with new taxes or tax increases from succeeding. It simply requires proponents to persuade a broader share of voters that a proposed tax increase is necessary and beneficial before asking taxpayers to pay more from their family budgets.

Protecting Utah's Decision-Making

Amendment B ensures major tax changes demonstrate broad support among Utah voters. Requiring a 60% vote encourages proponents to build support across communities, regions and political viewpoints before a tax increase becomes law.

The Choice Belongs to Utah Voters

Any proposal that will take more money from Utah families, workers and businesses should have widespread agreement from the people who will pay for it.

Amendment B provides that safeguard by requiring statewide tax-related ballot initiatives earn 60% voter approval before becoming law. The amendment does not prevent voters from approving tax hikes they support. It simply ensures proposals affecting taxpayers statewide have broad backing before they take effect.

A vote FOR on Amendment B means higher standards for higher taxes.

Sen. Lincoln Fillmore
Rep. Jason Kyle

Rebuttal to Argument in Favor

Amendment B (SJR 2) asks: Should elected officials have more power than you?

The argument for Amendment B (SJR 2) is built on the lie that Utah voters cannot be trusted to make decisions about taxes unless politicians raise the bar.

Utahns already weigh the costs and benefits of ballot initiatives before voting. Requiring 60% approval for tax-related initiatives does not create accountability. It creates an unequal system where voters face stricter rules than the Legislature itself. Lawmakers can raise taxes with a simple majority. The people should have that same power.

Supporters of Amendment B (SJR 2) claim initiatives lack public input, but citizen-led initiatives are among the most public forms of lawmaking. They require collecting thousands of signatures, organizing across the state, and persuading a majority of voters. That is direct democracy in action.

Amendment B (SJR 2) also creates a dangerous precedent. It carves out one category of policy and subjects it to a higher standard, opening the door for future lawmakers to chip away at the initiative process issue by issue. Today it is taxes. Tomorrow it could be redistricting, healthcare, education, or public safety.

This amendment is not about protecting taxpayers. It is about protecting legislative power. Utah's Constitution gives citizens the right to act when their government will not. Amendment B (SJR 2) weakens that right.

VOTE NO ON AMENDMENT B (SJR 2).

Senator Luz Escamilla & Representative Angela Romero

Argument Against

Vote NO on SJR 2.

SJR 2 is an attack on ballot initiatives and our constitutional ability to govern ourselves.

Utahns deserve the same rules that apply to their elected officials. The Utah Constitution protects the people's power to reform their government and make laws directly through the initiative process. SJR 2 would make that process harder by requiring 60% voter approval for certain citizen initiatives, setting a precedent that could eventually change the entire initiative process. The Legislature can often pass similar measures with a simple majority; voters should be held to the same standard. Utah's initiative process exists so that citizens can act when they believe the government has failed to do so. We should not make that constitutional right harder to use. Do not be fooled, this is a power grab.

Vote NO on SJR 2.

Senator Luz Escamilla & Representative Angela Romero

Rebuttal to Argument Against

Amendment B is straightforward: before outside interests can raise your taxes through a ballot initiative, they should have to convince a broad majority of Utahns — not just 50% plus one.

The opposition calls this a “power grab” But the only power Amendment B limits is the ability of well-funded campaigns — often backed by out-of-state interests — to increase taxes on every Utah family with a razor-thin majority. That's not a power grab. That's protection.

Amendment B does not eliminate the initiative process or restrict anyone's right to vote. It simply requires that measures raising taxes earn 60% support before they take effect. Other states have learned this lesson the hard way: bare-majority tax initiatives have passed with narrow support, locked in lasting tax increases that proved nearly impossible to reverse, and left families and businesses paying the price for years. Utah can choose a better standard.

Yes, Amendment B sets a higher bar for ballot initiatives than for the legislature — and that's exactly the point. Legislators who raise your taxes face voters at the next election. They can be replaced. A tax increase passed by initiative faces no such accountability: it is drafted solely by its proponents, bypasses the normal legislative process, and once passed, can only be undone by another costly campaign. A less accountable process deserves a higher threshold. That's not unfair; that's common sense.

Amendment B protects your voice, your vote and your wallet.

Vote FOR on Amendment B.

Sen. Lincoln Fillmore
Rep. Jason Kyle

UTAH

HOW DOES UTAH CHOOSE JUDGES?

The Utah Constitution states: "Selection of judges shall be based solely upon consideration of fitness for office without regard to any partisan political consideration." To fulfill this mandate, Utah selects its state court judges through a process called Merit Selection.

Merit Selection involves four steps: 1) nomination, 2) appointment, 3) confirmation, and 4) retention election. A committee of lawyers and non-lawyers selected by the Governor reviews judicial applications, conducts interviews, and then nominates the five best-qualified applicants for each trial court judgeship and the seven best-qualified applicants for each appellate court judgeship. The Governor then interviews all nominees and appoints one, who must then be confirmed by a majority of the Utah State Senate.

After confirmation and the first three years of service, the new judge's name appears on the ballot for a "yes" or "no" retention vote by the public to determine whether the judge may serve another term of office. Supreme Court justices serve 10-year terms; all other judges serve six-year terms.

Why does Utah use Merit Selection? This method of selecting judges is widely considered the best way to balance the need for judges to be accountable to the public with the equally important need for the judiciary to function independently. Judges serve the public and should answer to the public. That's why Utah has retention elections – to give every citizen the right to weigh in on judges. Of equal importance, though, every judge must resolve disputes impartially and make decisions based only on the facts and the law. To do so, judges must be insulated from public pressure and politics. That's why all judicial candidates are non-partisan and why Utah does not have contested elections for judgeships.

WHAT EXACTLY ARE JUDICIAL RETENTION ELECTIONS?

- If a judge seeks an additional term of office, the Utah Constitution requires that the judge run in a retention election. In that election, a simple majority of "yes" votes earns the judge another term in office.
- The retention election helps keep judges independent by insulating them from partisan politics. At the same time, by allowing every voter to weigh in, the election process ensures that judges remain accountable to the public. To cast an informed vote, the public can first read about the judges either in the Voter Information Pamphlet or online at judges.utah.gov or vote.utah.gov.

HOW DOES UTAH EVALUATE ITS JUDGES?

- The Judicial Performance Evaluation Commission is an independent, 13-member group of lawyers and non-lawyers. Each of the three branches of government appoints an equal number of its members.
- The Commission must by law evaluate all judges twice during their terms of office. The first evaluation gives the judges the opportunity for self-improvement. The second evaluation gives the public information to use in casting their votes. As part of the second evaluation, the Commission votes on whether or not to recommend the judge for another term in office. Sometimes, the votes will not total 13. This happens when a commissioner does not vote because of personal or professional relationships with a judge that could affect an unbiased evaluation or when a commissioner is absent from the meeting at which the vote is taken...

- The evaluation includes several elements. Online surveys are sent to attorneys, court staff, and jurors. In addition, trained courtroom observers spend a minimum of two hours in each judge's courtroom and submit written reports of their observations on each judge. Each judge must also meet ethical standards as well as court standards for judicial education, timeliness, and fitness to serve. Finally, the Commission considers comments submitted to judges.utah.gov from members of the public who have first-hand experience with a judge. The Commission considers all this information, and then each commissioner casts a vote either for or against recommending the judge for another term of office.
- By law, judges have the right to see the results of their evaluation before making the decision to run for another term of office in a judicial retention election. If the judge chooses to run for retention election, the report on the judge is made available to the public in the Voter Information Pamphlet and online at judges.utah.gov. If the judge chooses not to run for retention election, the evaluation is, by law, a protected record.

WHAT CRITERIA MUST A JUDGE MEET TO "MEET OR EXCEED MINIMUM PERFORMANCE STANDARDS?"

If a judge meets the eight performance standards in the table below, it is presumed that the Commission will recommend that the voters retain the judge for another term of office. If the judge fails to meet the standards, it is presumed that the Commission will not recommend retention. If the Commission does not go along with a presumption or chooses to make no retention recommendation at all, it must explain in detail the reasons for its action.

WHAT ABOUT JUSTICE COURT JUDGES?

Justice court judges are selected through a merit selection process roughly similar to state court judges, except that the appointing authority is the municipality or county rather than the governor. Justice court judges serve six-year terms of office and stand for retention elections like state court judges. Justice courts vary widely in terms of case loads and the numbers of attorneys appearing in the court. Based on this variation, there are three levels of evaluations to which a justice court judge may be subject.

- Full evaluation: These justice court judges preside over the courts with the highest caseloads and are thus subject to the same standards and evaluation measures as state court judges (#1-8 below).

- Mid-level evaluation: These justice court judges preside over medium-sized courts where fewer attorneys appear regularly. The mid-level evaluation includes interviews with court users, including litigants and those who accompany them to court, attorneys, court staff, interpreters, bailiffs and others. These judges must also meet judicial discipline standard (#5 below) and performance standards established by the Judicial Council (#6- 8 below).
- Basic evaluation: These justice court judges preside over the smallest courts in Utah. They must meet judicial discipline standard (#5 below) and performance standards established by the Judicial Council (#6-8 below). Seven justice court judges on the ballot received a basic evaluation in 2022. Some justice court judges have multiple courts and retention election years. For these judges, JPEC selects one retention election year as the "controlling cycle" and conducts its evaluations as if all the judge's courts had the same election year. As a consequence, JPEC reuses a judge's prior evaluation for this year's election for a small number of judges.

	Performance Criteria	Performance Standard
1.	Legal Ability: • demonstrates understanding of the substantive law and any relevant rules of procedure and evidence; • attends to factual and legal issues before the court; • adheres to precedent and clearly explains departures from precedent; • grasps the practical impact on the parties of the judge's rulings, including the effect of delay and increased litigation expense; • writes clear judicial opinions; and • explains clearly the legal basis for judicial opinions.	The judge must earn an average score of 3.6 or higher on a scale of 1 to 5.
2.	Judicial Temperament & Integrity: • demonstrates courtesy toward court participants; • maintains decorum in the courtroom; • demonstrates judicial demeanor and personal attributes that promote public trust and confidence in the judicial system; • demonstrates preparedness for oral argument; • avoids impropriety or the appearance of impropriety; • displays fairness and impartiality toward all parties; and • communicates clearly, including the ability to explain the basis for written rulings, court procedures, and decisions.
3.	Administrative Performance: • manages workload effectively; • shares proportionally the workload within the court or district; and • issues opinions and orders without unnecessary delay.
4.	Judicial Discipline: whether the judge has been subject to any instances of public discipline by the Utah Supreme Court.	The judge must have no more than one public reprimand issued by the Utah Supreme Court during the judge's current term.

	Performance Criteria	Performance Standard
5.	Procedural Fairness (which focuses on the treatment judges accord people in their courts): • Neutrality: ◦ displays fairness and impartiality to all court participants; ◦ acts as a fair and principled decision maker who applies rules consistently across court participants and cases; ◦ explains how rules are applied and how decisions are reached; ◦ and listens carefully and impartially; • Respect: ◦ treats all people with dignity; ◦ helps interested parties understand decisions and what the parties must do as a result; ◦ demonstrates adequate preparation to hear scheduled cases; ◦ acts in the interest of the parties, not out of demonstrated personal prejudices; ◦ demonstrates awareness of the effect of delay on court participants; ◦ demonstrates interest in the needs, problems, and concerns of court participants; • Voice: ◦ gives parties the opportunity, where appropriate, to give voice to their perspectives or situations and demonstrates that they have been heard; ◦ behaves in a manner that demonstrates full consideration of the case as presented through witnesses, arguments, pleadings, and other documents; ◦ and attends, where appropriate, to the participants' comprehension of the proceedings.	The JPEC commissioner must decide if the evidence demonstrates, by the totality of the circumstances, that the judge's conduct in court promotes procedural fairness at a level commensurate with the standard set forth for the scored minimum performance standards on the survey – a 3.6 on a scale of 1 to 5;
6.	Judicial Education: whether the judge has met continuing education requirements.	The Judicial Council must certify the judge has met this standard.
7.	Timeliness: whether the judge has met time requirements for ruling on cases taken under advisement.
8.	Physical and mental competence: whether the judge is fit for office.

- Individuals protected by protective or protection orders
- Members of the armed forces
- Public figures who have a higher safety risk due to their celebrity status or prominent position
- A person who resides with a person described in the bullet points above.

You can obtain an at-risk request form from your county clerk's office or the Office of the Utah Lieutenant Governor, or you may download the form online at www.vote.utah.gov.

Can I register to vote if I have been arrested or convicted of a crime?

You can register to vote if you:

- Are granted parole;
- Are on probation for a misdemeanor or a felony;
- Are a pretrial detainee awaiting trial;
- Are currently in jail serving a sentence for a misdemeanor that is not related to election law; or
- Are no longer serving a term of imprisonment due to a felony or misdemeanor conviction.

How do I vote if I'm a Utah resident but live outside of the state at the time of an election?

If you are a Utah resident who is actively serving military duty or currently resides outside of the U.S., complete "Section 7" of the Voter Registration Form to be eligible to receive a ballot by fax or email. If you are a Utah resident and would prefer to not receive your ballot at your primary residence, please complete "Section 4" of the form with an accurate mailing address. This will enable you to receive your by-mail ballot at a separate address from your primary residence.

Who should I contact if I have more questions?

Contact your county clerk's office. You can obtain their contact information at www.vote.utah.gov.
